

The Daily Courant.

Wednesday, August 27. 1707.

From the Amsterdam Courant, dated Sept. 1.

Turin, August 17.

THE 13th Instant, the Banker of the Court came hither in 4 Days from the Camp before Toulon, with Letters for our Dutcheſs. He reports that the Marquis of Sales, and M. Piccone Colonel of a Regiment of Dragoons, were kill'd; that the Chevalier de Soiffons, Nephew to Prince Eugene, was dangerously wounded, that the Beſiegers had cut down the Olive-trees to make Faſcines, and that the Beſieged ſeem'd reſolv'd to make a vigorous Defence. The 15th, 120 French Officers, who had been taken Priſoners, were exchange'd; but ſome, who could not pay their Debts, are ſtill detain'd for that reaſon.

From the Amſt. and Leid. Gazettes, dated Sept. 1.

From the Army of the Allies before Toulon, Aug. 14. The 5th, we finiſh'd our Batteries on the Right, and continued to work on thoſe on our Left. All that Day the Enemy fir'd hard upon us from their Cannon and Mortars, but without much Execution. The 6th, all our Works on the Right were finiſh'd, and we work'd very hard to perfect thoſe on the Left, that we might joyn them together, to cover our Batteries. The Beſieged continu'd to fire vigorously on us from their Artillery, and that Day we had 10 Men kill'd, and ſome wounded: Among the former were a Captain of the Heſſian, and a Lieutenant of the Imperial Troops. We had then but 3 Pieces of Cannon on our Batteries, and we ſaw the Enemy working with great Diligence to place a great many Cannon on a large Ship that lay in the Port, from whence they might eaſily fire at us over the level Grounds. Several Deſerters came that Day to us, and reported, that Count Medavi was expected, and that the Marſhal de Teſſe was forming an Army near Marſeilles. The 7th, we perfected our Batteries, and tho' we had not plac'd all our Cannon on them, we began to fire upon the foremention'd Ship and on a Fort on the Sea-ſide. We join'd our Works to cover our Batteries, and it was reſolv'd to enlarge our Battery on the Right. Colonel Pfeſſerkorn was ſent out with 200 Horſe towards the neighbouring Mountains, to forrage; he found there ſome of the Enemy's Troops, with the Peaſants in Arms, who immediately fir'd upon him; But he answer'd their Fire very vigorously, and intirely defeated them; and then attacking the Enemy's regular Troops, kill'd ſeveral of them on the Spot, and took a Lieutenant Priſoner, whom he brought to the Camp, having had in this Action but 2 Men kill'd and ſome wounded. He found a great deal of Forrage in the Mountains, but it being very difficult to bring it off by reaſon of the Deſileers, and becauſe the Peaſants in the Neighbourhood had taken up Arms, Colonel St. Amour was detach'd with 400 Foot and 200 Horſe, to exhort them to lay down their Arms, and to return to their own Homes. The 8th, Orders were given to raiſe 2 new Batteries, of 20 Cannon each, behind our Intrenchments. That Day we receiv'd Advice that 6 Battallions, detach'd from the Netherlands, had join'd the Enemy's Army. The 9th, the Beſieged made a Sally, but were repulſ'd with Loſs; mean while they made a great fire from their Cannon and Mortars. The 10th, we perceiv'd that they had joyn'd another Ship to that above-mention'd in the Harbour; and that Day they made ſo great a Fire upon us from their Artillery, that they diſmounted 3 of our Cannon, kill'd 10 or 12 Men and wounded 18 others. Admiral Shovel came that Day to the Head-Quarters, where a great Council of War was immediately held; and afterwards 300 Men were commanded out to attack the Enemy's Fort, and the great Tower, which commanding the Harbour, hinder'd the Fleet from coming near the Town. The 11th we had Advice that the Enemy had receiv'd a Reinforcement of 6 Battallions more; and Colonel St. Amour ſent Intelligence to our Generals, that the Enemy had ſent ſome Troops to joyn the Peaſants that had taken Arms to oppoſe our Forragers, who are oblig'd to go a great Way for Forrage: Whereupon Count Feliz was detach'd the 12th with ſome Horſe to joyn him, that he may be the better able to make head againſt the Enemy: Deſerters that came over that Day, reported that the 11th 15 Battallions arriv'd in their Camp; ſo that they have now 60 Battallions to defend the Place, moſt of which are encamp'd in the Intrenchments; and that they expect yet more Troops from Germany and Rouſſillon. Orders are given for raiſing 2 Batteries more to batter the Ports on the Sea-ſide. Yeſterday and to Day we have continu'd to carry on our Works, and to perfect our Batteries, that we may attack the Place by Sea and Land. We are now actually battering Fort St. Louis, the 2 Ships, and the Town. The Beſieged make a very great Fire upon us, ſo that we hear the Report of 100 Cannon and Mortars at a Time; but they do little Execution. When we come to be Maſters of the Ports St. Louis and St. Margaret, we ſhall have a free Communication with the Fleet, which lies at Anchor at the Entrance of the Road of Toulon. Deſerters report, that Count Medavi lies encamp'd with a Body of Horſe, and with ſome Foot and Militia, near Brignoles; but Count Feliz keeps a watchful Eye on him.

Amſterdam, Sept. 2. Letters from Toulon of the 16th, which are come by the Way of Switzerland, ſay, that on the 15th in the Morning, the French retook from the Allies the Hill of St. Catherine, nail'd up 12 Cannon and 4 Mortars, and level'd the Works: but that towards the Evening the Allies return'd thither again; and repair'd their Batteries, from whence they cannonaded and bombard'd the Town with ſuch Violence, that 3000 Perſons, Men, Women, and Children, left it. Theſe Letters make no Mention that the Beſieged, during their Sally and Attack, repair'd the Breaches of Fort St. Louis, as the Advices from Paris told us they had: on the contrary, they tell us, that Fort was extremely damag'd.

From the Antwerp Courant, dated Sept. 2.

Marſeilles, Aug. 20. The Enemy have for 3 Days together been throwing Bombs into Toulon from the Land: which we can eaſily ſee from our neighbouring Hills: yet according to our Advices from thence of Yeſterday, they had hitherto done little Hurt, moſt of the Bombs falling into the Water beyond the Town. To day we have Advice, that the Enemy were beginning their Preparations Yeſterday to attack our Intrenchments in ſeveral Places, that their whole Army was in Motion to that End, and that our Troops were under their Arms to receive them. The Enemy's Fleet came Yeſterday Morning to an Anchor before the Road, in order to get into the Harbour, if Poſſible, and to bombard the Town.

Paris, Aug. 29. The 26th Instant the King receiv'd by 2 Exprefſes the Confirmation, that after the Enemy had in a 2d Attack made themſelves Maſters of Fort St. Louis, from whence they very eaſily threw Bombs into the Town, a Bomb from the Town fell into that Fort, fir'd the Magazine of Powder, Powder, and blew up the Fort it self: Which Misfortune caus'd a great consternation among the Enemy; who being the Impossibility of coming with their Fleet into the Harbour of Toulon, and having Intelligence that Troops were marching from several Parts, to reinforce the Marshal de Maffie, broke up the Siege in the Night between the 21st and 22d, and march'd back towards Cuers, having first put aboard the Fleet most of their Cannon and their Sick. That M. Maffie immediately detach'd a good Number of Troops to take Possession of the Port of la Valette, and sent Orders to Count Medavi to follow the Enemy, and, if possible, to joyn the Chevalier de Maine, who was among the Mountains and in the Woods with 10 or 12000 arm'd Peasants; but 'twas believ'd that the Enemy would find means to repass the Var safely: To which End the Duke of Savoy cover'd his March with all his Cavalry. About 100 Houses in Toulon were burnt or damag'd by the Bombs, which likewise broke to pieces and sunk 2 old Ships of War. The Duke of Burgundy's Journey to Provence is at an End, and the Troops that were marching thither are countermanded.

Paris, Aug. 29. We have Advice from the Camp at Gotsauw of the 21st Instant, that nothing of Moment had happen'd since the Cannonading on the 18th: That both Armies continu'd in Sight of each other; that on the 19th Count Zollern, Veld-Marshal of the Emperor's Troops had a Conference with M. Villars in our Camp, but on what Subject was not known; and that both Armies were much incommoded by the wet Weather. The Court came Yesterday from Marli to Versailles and their Journey to Fontainebleau is fix'd to the 12th of next Month. Letters from Court say, that the Enemy's Fleet is sail'd with some Battalions on board from before Toulon to Catalonia.

Mons, Aug. 30. Yesterday our whole Garrison march'd in great Haste to the Camp of Chievre, tho' 'tis said the Duke of Vendome has Orders to avoid coming to a Battle with the Enemy, as much as possible.

Brussels, Aug. 31. The Duke of Vendome has countermanded the 6000 Men, whom he sent the 25th towards Mons and Charleroy: but his heavy Baggage remains still between Sirau and Villeroi, that he may on Occasion, retire into the Lines behind the Haifac.

Letters from the Army of the Allies commanded by the Duke of Marlborough dated from the Camp at Attre the 1st of September, advise, that the Day before the Army decamp'd from Soignies and march'd towards the Dender, with Design to pass that River and to gain the Enemy's Left Flank and force them to a Battle in Case they should continue in their Camp at Cambron: But on the Approach of the Vanguard of the Allies, the Enemy broke up their Camp and march'd towards Tournay in great Disorder; whereupon my Lord Duke caus'd his Army to encamp with the Right at Yffers and the Left at Gondrignies, and took up his Head Quarter at Attre. The Enemy encamp'd between Tournay and Montagne with the Schelde in their Rear. Brigadier Blood Colonel of the English Train died the 30th of August at Brussels. These Letters add, that the Artillery and heavy Baggage of the Army of the Allies were order'd to march the 2d of September N. S. towards Audenarde; and that the Army was to follow the next Day, in Order to pass the Schelde there.
